

Bloomfield High School has been redesignated as a “Breakthrough School” by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. BHS was first named a Breakthrough School in 2012 for being a Title I school that is continually improving in the area of academics and school environment. By earning redesignation in 2017 BHS is in the company of very few schools who have earned the honor twice.

For information regarding the initial designation please go to:

<https://www.districtadministration.com/dod/awards/bloomfield-school-district-multiple-opportunities-success>